 The premise of the plot is that four very old Jewish people, survivors of the Holocaust, believe they have seen the "Shadow Man". The Shadow Man was a Jew who joined forces with the Nazis to find Jews that were hiding to avoid certain doom in concentration camps. These four old people feared the Shadow Man more than anything. When one of them is killed, a retired police detective named Simon Winter looks into who the Shadow Man is.

The Shadow Man by John Katzenbach - Goodreads
 John Katzenbach writes a crime thriller that blends historical fiction, and it is a searing one at that. It begins with Simon Winter, one of the best cops on Miami's Homicide beat ready to end his life when his neighbor Sophie Milstien comes to his door frightened that she saw a catcher, a traitorous jew who worked for the Nazi's in WWII.

 THE SHADOW MAN. By John Katzenbach Ballantine Books. 468 pp. Even as we tour Washington's Holocaust Museum, standing in the boxcars that herded millions to the camps, seeing the tattered empty shoes of the victims, studying models of the crematoria and watching propaganda films equating Jews with sewer rats, something that entitles us to feel part of the civilized community blocks our understanding.
